IV. Reading Comprehension (40 points, 2 points for each)

Directions: Read the following passages and choose the best answer to each of the questions.

Passage One

Questions 31 to 35 are based on the following passage.

Corporate culture refers to the shared values, beliefs, and practices within a company that shape its work environment. A strong corporate culture can significantly impact employee motivation, satisfaction, and productivity. Companies with positive cultures often encourage open communication, teamwork, and innovation, which contribute to a supportive and collaborative atmosphere.

Corporate culture is typically set by top management, who influence how employees interact with each other and approach their tasks. For example, companies that prioritize innovation may reward employees for coming up with creative ideas, while companies focused on efficiency might emphasize adherence to established procedures. Corporate culture can vary greatly between industries; a tech startup might have a casual and flexible culture, while a traditional finance company may have a more formal and structured environment.

Research shows that a well-defined corporate culture not only improves employee retention but also attracts talent that fits well with the company's values. However, if the corporate culture is overly rigid or does not align with employee expectations, it may lead to high turnover and decreased morale. Thus, adapting corporate culture to meet employee needs and market changes is essential for long-term success.

In conclusion, corporate culture is a vital element of organizational success. It impacts employee behavior and satisfaction and plays a role in attracting and retaining talent. Companies that invest in creating a positive culture are likely to enjoy increased productivity and a more committed workforce.

31. According to the passage, what does corporate culture refer to?
- A. The organizational structure of a company.
 - B. The physical layout of an office.

32. How does a strong corporate culture affect employees, as mentioned in the passage?
- A. It limits their creativity.
 - B. It decreases their motivation.
 - C. It improves their motivation and satisfaction.
 - D. It causes communication barriers.
33. Why might a tech startup and a finance company have different corporate cultures?
- A. They have different numbers of employees.
 - B. They operate in different industries.
 - C. They use different marketing strategies.
 - D. They have similar management styles.
34. What can be a consequence of a corporate culture that does not align with employee expectations?
- A. Increased employee satisfaction.
 - B. Greater employee retention.
 - C. High turnover and decreased morale.
 - D. Improved adherence to procedures.
35. According to the passage, what is essential for long-term success in terms of corporate culture?

- A. Maintaining a rigid set of values.
- B. Avoiding change to ensure stability.
- C. Adapting corporate culture to meet employee needs and market changes.
- D. Following a traditional corporate culture model.

Passage Three

Questions 41 to 45 are based on the following passage.

NextStep Careers is a recruitment consultancy that assists job seekers in preparing for interviews and improving their chances of securing employment. Founded in 2015, NextStep has worked with thousands of clients, from recent graduates to experienced professionals. The company offers personalized coaching, mock interview sessions, and resources on how to effectively present skills and experiences.

One of NextStep's primary focuses is on helping candidates understand the importance of behavioral interviews, where employers ask questions designed to gauge how a candidate might react in specific situations. Through mock interviews, NextStep coaches candidates on how to use the STAR method—Situation, Task, Action, Result—to structure their responses. This approach helps candidates give concise and relevant answers that highlight their problem-solving abilities and interpersonal skills.

In addition to interview preparation, NextStep also provides guidance on body language and non-verbal cues, which are essential elements of a successful interview. Maintaining eye contact, using confident gestures, and having an open posture can convey confidence and enthusiasm. NextStep coaches emphasize that these non-verbal signals often leave a lasting impression on interviewers, sometimes even more than spoken answers.

NextStep believes that preparation is key to reducing interview anxiety. By practicing common interview questions, candidates can enter the interview with greater confidence. This is particularly helpful for those who may feel nervous or uncertain about how to handle unexpected questions. The company also offers follow-up sessions, allowing candidates to review their performance and receive constructive feedback on areas that need improvement.

Many of NextStep's clients report positive outcomes, including job offers and improved interview skills, after completing their coaching sessions. Through its comprehensive support, NextStep aims to help clients not only succeed in interviews but also grow their overall career confidence.

41. What is the primary goal of NextStep Careers?
 - A. To help clients find high-paying jobs directly
 - B. To prepare job seekers for interviews
 - C. To create job postings for companies
 - D. To recruit candidates for management positions
42. What interview technique does NextStep teach candidates to use?
 - A. STAR method
 - B. SWOT analysis
 - C. Role-playing scenarios
 - D. Presentation skills
43. Why does NextStep emphasize non-verbal communication?
 - A. It is often more memorable than spoken answers
 - B. It can replace verbal responses in an interview
 - C. It shows interviewers that candidates are friendly
 - D. It ensures candidates use complex language
44. How does NextStep help candidates reduce interview anxiety?
 - A. By offering free online resources
 - B. By conducting real job interviews for them
 - C. By providing practice sessions for common questions
 - D. By advising candidates to speak as briefly as possible
45. What do many clients report after completing NextStep's coaching?
 - A. They have learned new languages
 - B. They feel less interested in job searching
 - C. They gain job offers and improved interview skills
 - D. They are interested in working for NextStep
